REPUTATION IS VERY EMPHATIC

Lieutenant Governor, at Racine, Says He Can't Pass Over Statement
Involving Senator

That Tom Morris will become a candidate for the United States senate is strongly suggested in the language in which the lieutenant governor denies a Madison dispatch to the effect that Senator La Follette has asked him to become a candidate for governor, rather than for United States senator.

The opening paragraph of the Madison story, which is given out "on high authority," and concerning which "those close to the lieutenant governor are not at liberty to speak for publication," although the statement is "generally credited," is as follows:

"Senator Robert M. La Follette wants Lieutenant Governor Thomas Morris to become a candidate for governor. Mr.
Morris prefers to run for the United States senate. The progressive republican leaders in the state, friends of Senator La Follette and of the lieutenant governor, are divided on the question, and it is due to this split that the tentative candidates for that position which Mr. Morris does not elect to seek have thus far been disappointed in their desire that the lieutenant governor announce his candidacy for one or the other and thus clear the field."

Reached by long distance telephone today, at Racine, where he is attending Made In Racine Week, Mr. Morris emphatically denied the story. The denial which he prepared for the press follows:

"It has not been my custom to deny newspaper stories, but this one affects another as well as myself. I feel that I should give the facts to the end that there shall be no misunderstanding on the part of anyone entitled to know the truth.
Senator La Follette has not asked me to be a candidate for governor."

While the denial is not specifically a denial that Mr. Morris will become a candidate for governor, the emphatic language in which it is made negatives the idea in no uncertain way.

The Madison story goes on to credit the La Crosse man with being the acknowledged La Follette leader in state affairs, and with having been given his choice of nominations, so far as the influence and support of the La Follette organization are concerned. The dispatch proceeds:

"Senator La Follette is said to regard retention of control of the state government as the most important feature in the 1914 campaign, for by the continuance of a progressive government in this state he believes the national progressive movement will have a base of supplies and a source of inspiration. It being conceded that Mr. Morris is by all odds the strongest man in the progressive republican ranks, the senator believes he should be induced to become a candidate for governor and thereby clinch the state organization."

"Not all progressive leaders, however, agree with Senator La Follette. Many of them think there are a number of good progressive republicans who could be elected governor, and that Tom Morris is the only man who would be certain to best McGovern in the race for the senatorial nomination."

"Morris regards the senatorship as the more desirable of the two positions, and he is inclined to agree with those who think one of a number of other able men could be elected to the governorship. He has conscientious convictions about his duty to pursue that course calculated to do most good for the progressive cause, but he cannot agree with those who think that to run for governor would conserve the best interests of the La Follette party.

"Mr. Morris feels deeply the obligation that is placed upon him by his acceptance of the role of progressive republican leader in Wisconsin, and his position is made more embarrassing by the fact that his associates have put it up to him to take his choice, so far as their united support goes, of the two highest offices in the gift of the people of the state. The position is a trying one, and he has delayed his decision in order to give the fullest consideration to the arguments on both sides of the question. It is said now, however, that his mind is practically made up, and that an announcement will shortly be forthcoming."

COMMITTEE ON THE JOB

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The senatorial committee appointed under the Kern resolution to investigate alleged suspension of constitutional rights in West Virginia in connection with the coal mine strikes this afternoon prepared to leave for that state to begin their work.

MADMAN AMUCK

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, June 9.— Family trouble is assigned today for the act of Ben Kniseley, a farmer living near Beaman, Grundy county, who late last night, armed with a shotgun, tried to exterminate his family, resulting in the death of two of his and his own suicide.

MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL ALSO

Modern School and Equipishing of Grounds and Building Promised

MADISON, Wis., June 9.—It may be announced with considerable certainty that the state normal budget will pass the legislature as it comes from the committee, and as a favorable report has already been practically agreed upon little doubt remains as to the outcome.

This means many needed improvements at the La Crosse normal school, some of them of a substantial nature. The schedule provides for the following:

Dormitories.
Manual training school.
Finishing of grounds.
Interior decorations.

The dormitories are desired not only because students obliged to find quarters in private homes cannot always secure good places at reasonable prices, but because with the dormitories the students can be kept more thoroughly under the school influence. The provision for this addition is said to be adequate.
The manual training school will be one of the best in the state, fully up to the high standard set by the normal regents and the legislature for normal means and methods.

The grounds will be finished according to the best methods of landscape gardening now in vogue, and the inside of the main normal building will be properly and attractively completed. The appropriation is something in excess of $200,000.

Stanford White in 1906. She had only a Tango dance, and the applause was perfunctory.

STATES INSIST ON BEING HEARD

Want to Influence Railroad Valuation that May Be Established in the Several States

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 9.— Headed by Clifford Thorne, chairman of the Iowa State Railroad commission, a committee representing the railroad commissions of eight central western states, will demand of President Wilson and congress that people be represented before the interstate commerce commission while that body fixes the physical valuation of railroads under the provisions of the La Follette bill. Senator Cummings has been asked to make an appointment, for the committee with the president. The committee is composed of Clifford Thorne of Iowa, chairman; John M. Atkinson of Missouri; Henderson S. Martin of Kansas; H. T. Clarke, Jr., of Nebraska; George A. Henshaw of Oklahoma; W.
H. Stutson of North Dakota; C. F.
Staples of Minnesota and J. J. Murphy of South Dakota.

The railroads have a committee of eighteen urging the interstate commerce commission to accept their valuation of the roads and the states' representatives objected to delay.
The national appraisal, it is declared, will practically control results of the present and future concerning all rate matters and in all litigation not only from a federal standpoint but in state matters also for the commission is authorized to make the appraisal of all the railroads and apportion the same among the different states for their use. It will encourage or prevent substantial reductions in rates for many years to come.

CANARIES NEST IN SKIFF FERRY

Two wild canaries have made their nest in the tin cup that Joe Spears uses for a chalk holder on a shelf in front of the boat house of his skiff livery, not six inches from the door which Mr. Spears passes fifty times a day.

A few days ago one of the birds appeared, and the next day its mate, and ever since that they have occupied their time in making their nest, unmindful of the scores of people passing every day within a few inches of their home. Mr.
Spears has petted the birds until they will come to him and eat out of his hand.

That they intend to stay is evidenced by two wee eggs that were found in the cup this morning.

FORMER MEMBERS WERE LOBBYISTS

That Is Charge Made by Senator Poindexter at the Senate Lobby Probe
Today

SENATOR SUTHERLAND IS DEFIANT

Declares Despite Private Interest He Will Vote Against Reduction
of Tariff

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The first alleged lobbyist appeared as a witness before the senate investigating committee this afternoon. He was former United States Senator Charles J. Faulkner of West Virginia. He testified that for twelve years since leaving the senate he had represented a number of railroad companies and the North American Commercial company by appearing before congressional committees.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Imitations of lobbying by former congression, which have been made by previous witnesses before the lobby investigating committee, took form today when Senator Miles Poindexter, of Washington, named former Senators Dubois of Idaho, Buler of North Carolina and Dick of Ohio, and former Representatives James Watson of Indiana and Littauer of New York as coming under his interpretation of a "lobbyist."

Poindexter declared that he knew of no reprehensible conduct on their part, but he said they had been forwarding legislation as agents of private interests since they had left congress.

Today's witnesses included besides Poindexter, Senators Walsh, Tillman, Sutherland, Bankhead and Reed.

Chairman Reed said he was not certain yet whether he would call the former congressmen he would call the committee to decide.

Interest Won't Stop Him

S Senator Sutherland of Utah, the first witness, confessed to a miscellany of holdings that ranged from 2,000 shares of mining stock worth five cents a share to 2,050 shares of stock in the Amalgamated Sugar company, worth $10 a share.

"Notwithstanding my interest in the beet sugar industry, I shall vote for protection on sugar and protection on other duties," said the witness.

Sutherland said that withholding a vote for a duty on sugar because he was interested would be a "piece of hypocritical affectation."

S Senator Reed of Missouri could remember only a few of his tariff callers including M. W. Fordyce of Missouri, on cotton bagging, and Colonel Fleming of Missouri and Thomas W. Blackburn of Omaha on insurance matters.

Condemns Interference

No one had approached him with offers of money, Reed said, but he had received "floods" of telegrams, generally in bundles of ten and fifteen at a time from the same city, all couched in about the same language. These, he declared, had convinced him that there "has been a propaganda against the tariff bill; that local pressure, inspired, had been brought to bear on congressmen."

Reed bitterly assailed "endless chain letters" sent congressmen declaring they were "full of trickery and deceit." He asserted it was an "unpleasant thing to have interests fasten themselves like barnacles on congress."

Have Had Tilt
Pressed by Senator Nelson the witness said he believed in past years the majority in the senate had been swayed by the influences he described.

"That view was before reform get in," observed Nelson.

Red angrily requested the senator not to "interpret his remarks."

LUMBER FIRE INCENDIARY

CHICAGO, June 9.—Several firemen were slightly injured early today in fighting a fire that caused $100,000 damage in the lumber yard of D. M. Fritts & Co. The blaze started simultaneously in three different places and incendiaryism is suspected.

PROGRESSIVES TO FINISH ALL WORK AT THIS SESSION

Water Power Experts Have Gotten Together and a Sound Bill Will Be Reported Out Soon

MARKETING BILL ALSO SOON

Unlike McGovern Bill the Anti-Trust Feature Will Be Left Out to Form a Separate Measure

REASONS FOR RECESS ARE GONE

Plan of Progressives Now Is to Push All Promised Legislation and Session Will Reach July

MADISON, Wis., June 9.—The progressive legislative program, including an anti-trust bill, a marketing bill and a water power bill, will be concluded before adjournment of the legislature.

This statement is made upon authority of those who control the machinery of legislation, and it means that, while the senate can force a recess until January in spite of the adverse action of the assembly, the action will not be taken.

Both the more important reasons because of which the progressive leaders desired a recess have been removed. A split on the water power bill, which seemed to render it impossible to get a satisfactory bill out in a reasonable time, has been adjusted, and the experts are now working together in harmony. The decision of the supreme court making it impossible for Governor McGovern to run amuck lopping off heads of the various state commissioners has rendered the recess as a strategic move unnecessary.

The anti-trust feature will be left out of the marketing bill, and put in a separate bill, so that each will stand upon its own merits. The marketing bill will retain the good features of the McGovern bill and reject its objectionable portions. This bill is practically ready for introduction.

At Work on Conservation

The senate special committee on conservation is steadily at work on the waterpower bill. The committee desired until next January to make certain that none of the rights the people have in the waterpowers of the state are granted away, and on the other hand, that no encroachment is made upon the rights of the individual property owner, so that the law may stand the test of the courts.
If the law passed by this legislature falls in the courts, waterpower development will be tied up until 1915.
The waterpower law passed in 1911 was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court in a decision that took away some of the rights it was hoped the state retained. Just how much remains may take another decision of the court to determine. The special committee is determined that if it shall err, because of the lack of time, it shall be upon the side of the state, and that no bill shall be passed which will grant away any rights in the waterpowers which, by the supreme court's decision, may still reside in the state.

A recent decision by the United States supreme court, it is said, may materially change the legal situation in this state as to waterpowers. The decision was made in a Michigan case and was to the effect, according to reports, that riparian owners are not the owners of the waterpower. It is thought by members of the committee who telegraphed immediately for copies, that this may reserve to Wisconsin important rights lost under the decision of the Wisconsin supreme court on the law of 1911.

Pure Food

Dairy and food commissioner Emery has won an almost complete victory for his recommendation to the legislature.

The most noticeable part of this victory, of course, is the defeat of the corn syrup trust's attempt to repeal the requirement for the labeling of glucose as such.

Another bill, No. 627A, introduced by Mr. Rosa, and which has been signed by the governor and become a law, is calculated to aid the dairy and food commissioner in the prosecution of violators of the pure food laws. From the standpoint of the commissioner this bill was weakened by amendments.

The commissioner also secured passage by the assembly of a law materially strengthening the weights and measures statute passed in 1911.
This bill is likely to be concurred in by the senate with little material change.

Revise Workmen's Compensation

Both houses have passed the industrial commission's bill revising the workmen's compensation act.
The most important amendment made is the abolition of the defense of contributory negligence. This removes all three of the common law defenses in industrial accidents, assumption of risk and negligence of a co-employee having been abolished.

SUPREME COURT HOLDS FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HAS POWER OVER INTERSTATE NOT INTRA-STATE RATES

DECISION FAILS TO SETTLE POINT

Turpentine Trust Officials Are Freed on Error in the Trial Court
Today

RAISE RIGHT OF JAIL SENTENCE

But Court Fails to Decide
This Vital Question in Prosecution of the Trusts

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The supreme court today set aside jail sentences of three months each given two officers of the American Naval Stores company—the "turpentine trust"—of Savannah, Ga. The court reversed decisions as to all five officers of the company accused of combining to monopolize the turpentine industry.

Constitutionality of the criminal clauses of the Sherman law were squarely raised. The case was the first ever presented to the high court in which jail sentences had been imposed for its violation. The defendants declared that the penal provisions were utterly void because the law did not confine the crimes prohibited and penalized. They asserted that the law attempted to create a crime, but was not explicit and does not apprise business men of its prohibitions and penalties. They said business men cannot know what acts are illegal and that the law furnishes no criterion of commercial conduct.

The court reversed the decision, however, because of error by the trial judge in his instructions to the jury.

"He told the jury any fact might be shown to establish the conspiracy," the court declared. The trial judge held that proof of gauging of turpentine was proof of the conspiracy alone.

The court did not hold, however, that the Sherman law's criminal provisions are too vague to be enforced.
Justice Pitney dissented from the opinion. "The Sherman law punishes offenders on a common law footing," was Justice Holmes' declaration in the majority opinion.

EXEMPTS ELECTRIC LINES

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission over interurban and street car lines doing an interstate business was denied today by the supreme court by a decision continuing present fares between Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Iowa. The court held the law did not include electric lines when it provided for the regulation of interstate business.

AMERICANS WINNING

WEST SIDE COURTS, NEW YORK, June 9.—By winning three straight sets at singles this afternoon, Maurice E. McLoughlin of California eliminated the Australians from the international tennis matches for the Davis cup. The Americans will now play the Germans for the privilege of meeting the English defenders of the cup. The scores of the three sets were as follows:

McLoughlin, 6-6-6; Doust, 4-4-2.

WESTON MAKES GOOD TIME

HANKINS, N. Y., June 9.—After spending Sunday here resting, Edward Payson Weston, pedestrian, walking from New York to Minneapolis, left early this morning for Susquehanna, Pa., where he will spend the night. Up to Sunday Weston had covered 143 miles of his journey.

POLICE HUNT MAN.

Chief of Police Webber today, received a request from Louisville, Neb., to search for a wealthy farmer by the name of Larson, said to live thirteen miles from La Crosse. A laborer working for a quarry in the Nebraska town was seriously hurt by a train Thursday evening. He gave his name as A. Larson, and said he had a brother living near La Crosse.

STEAMER ON FIRE

NEW YORK, June 9.—A wireless message was received here early today stating that the Cuban steamer Olinda was making for the nearest port because of a fire in her No. 1 hold. The hold had been flooded.
The Olinda must be about 700 miles south of the lights, and is probably making for Savannah or Brunswick.

STATES' RIGHTS ARE VINDICATED

Federal Control Asserted as to All Matters Even Affecting "Interstate Commerce"

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Staunchly upholding all authority of the states to regulate railroad rates within their own borders, the supreme court today declared constitutional Minnesota's law reducing freight and passenger rates.

A death-blow aimed at state's rights by forty powerful allied railroads affecting six states immediately and every state ultimately is defeated by the decision.

That intrastate rate regulation by railroad commission is not interference with interstate commerce or usurpation of federal powers is declared.

The court held that the states can regulate intrastate rates when congress has not acted in the field, subject to the courts to ascertain as if the rates are confiscatory.

The decree was generally considered a great victory for the states and against the railroads.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—After five-teen months of anxious waiting by Wall street and the railroads, the supreme court today handed down its decision in the Minnesota case including the celebrated "Minnesota rate" case. Justice Hughes read the decision. The case involves the right of federal courts to interfere with intra-state rates established by state commissions.

The court held in the Minnesota case that the two-cent rates are reasonable as to the Northern Pacific and Great Northern cases, but confisca-tory to the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

The court declared:

1.—The constitution gives congress an authority at all times adequate to secure the freedom of interstate commercial intercourse from state control and to provide effective regulation of that intercourse as the national interests may demand.

2.—The commerce that is confined within one state, and does not affect other states, is reserved to the state.
This reservation is only of that portion which is consistent with the grant to congress. The authority of congress extends to every part of interstate commerce and to every instru-mentality or agency by which it is carried on; and the full control by congress over the subject committed to its regulation is not to be denied, or thwarted by the co-mingling of interstate, and intrastate operations.

3.—Even without action by congress, the commerce clause of the constitution necessarily excludes the states from direct control of subjects embraced within the clause which are of such a nature that if regulated at all, their regulation should be prescribed by a single authority.

FALL IS FATAL

Kimball, driver for the Crescent Creamery company, is dead today as a result of plunge in his wagon over a sixty foot cliff.

TO ENFORCE THE AUTO ROAD RULE

Mayor Sorensen Issues a Booklet and Declares Intention of Applying Law Strictly

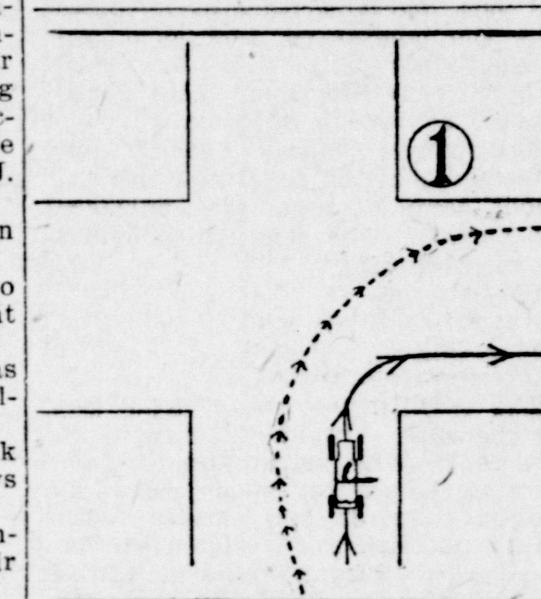

AUTO OWNERS ARE NOTIFIED

Executive Will Allow Reasonable Time to Learn Rules and Then Order Police to Act

Determined to enforce the ordinance rules regulating the handling of automobiles in the city streets, Mayor Sorensen has ordered the code printed in pamphlet form, and a copy sent to every owner of an auto. His Honor said today that a reasonable time, perhaps thirty days, would be given motorists to familiarize themselves with the rules, after which the police would be directed to strictly enforce them in all particulars. In order to facilitate understanding of the rules, the mayor has caused the pamphlet to be illustrated, a line cut for each rule being provided. The text of the pamphlet follows:

Rules for Automobiles and All Other Vehicles Issued by Police Department, City of La Crosse.

Turning to the Right
A motorist should approach the turn as near to the right hand curb as is practicable, as shown by the continuous line in figure 1, and should keep as near the curb as possible all the way round. His right arm should be extended to the right as a signal to block any other vehicle from attempting to crowd between his car and the curb. Such a course as is shown in the dotted line should never be taken, no matter what the excuse.

A driver in turning to the left should follow the black line shown in figure 2, keeping to the right of the intersection of the streets at all times and avoiding cutting the corner as shown by the dotted line, which would clearly put the motorist away from the part of the road to which he is entitled. In this case, the signaling arm should be extended to the left, and not to the right, as some people think and practice.

Turning in the Street
Under ordinary circumstances a driver wishing to turn and go in the opposite direction on the same street should keep to the right curb, pass the street intersection and swing back again close to the curb, as in figure 3. He should extend the arm on the left side until after the middle of the street is passed, when the right arm should be extended, beginning as in figure 2.

Passing Overtaken Vehicles
Do not get into the bad habit of attempting to pass an overtaken vehicle on the right, or between the vehicle and the curb, as shown by the dotted line in figure 4. You have no

The Mice Crept Into the Basket.

Daddy's Bedtime

How the Mouse Family Went to the Seashore

JACK and Evelyn laughed very hard. Daddy had just said that he would tell them about the mouse family's trip to the seashore.

"The weather was very hot, and the little mice were not feeling very well," daddy began.

"If we could have a day at the shore I'm sure we'd all be in much better health," Mrs. Mouse said to her husband.

"Mr. Mouse grumbled something about times being hard and seashore trips expensive, but Mrs. Mouse just frowned.

"It needn't cost us a cent," she said. "I heard the cook say last night that she was going picnicking tomorrow at the shore, and all we've got to do is to go with her."

"Oh, indeed!" Mr. Mouse murmured. "If the cook is going, of course I haven't any objection. No doubt she will provide well for us."

"No doubt," snapped Mrs. Mouse. "Take my word for it she has everything in that basket of hers that is good to eat."

"So Mrs. Mouse got Evelyn and Wilbur, her two children, ready, and when they had had their bath and were brushed and combed Mrs. Mouse called to Mr. Mouse, who was still busy curling his whiskers.

"Followed by the youngsters, she trotted to the dining room and hopped on to the table. An open basket was there, and Mrs. Mouse, pushing the children ahead of her, jumped in.

"You'd better hurry if you don't want the cook to catch you," she warned, and Mr. Mouse was after her like a flash. He was none too soon, for the cook came into the room just then and slammed the lid of the basket down.

"The trip to the seashore was a delightful one for the mice. The cook had filled the basket with all sorts of good things for herself and friends, and the mice nibbled at cake and cheese and pie till they couldn't eat any more.

"When they got to the seashore the cook set the basket down. She didn't open it, though, until lunch time, and Mr. and Mrs. Mouse had just time to hustle the children out of the basket and get them out of the way before noon.

"They were off and safely under a pier by that time, though. The mice spent a jolly day frolicking about through the sand. They picked up so many good things to eat which picnicers had thrown away after their luncheon that Mrs. Mouse said she had made up her mind to spend the summer there. On one of the piers she found a nice hole in which they could make their home, and, although Mr. Mouse grumbled a good deal about it being damp and bad for his rheumatism, stay they did."

Think for a moment the wonderful satisfaction of being actually positive that every time you turn the hot-water faucet you are going to get hot-water—not warm or luke-warm—but hot—piping hot—and in unlimited quantities—no matter what hour of the day or night it may be—no matter how many baths have been taken—no matter whether the range or furnace is in action or not—if you have a

HUMPHREY

Automatic Geyser

You are positively sure of all the hot water you can use, at the exact minute you want to use it.

That is a wonderful thing. You can't realize it if you have never enjoyed the luxury of unlimited hot water.

The Humphrey Automatic Geyser heats the water as it flows. You simply connect it to the regular gas and water-pipes in kitchen or basement—light the small pilot—and turn the faucet.

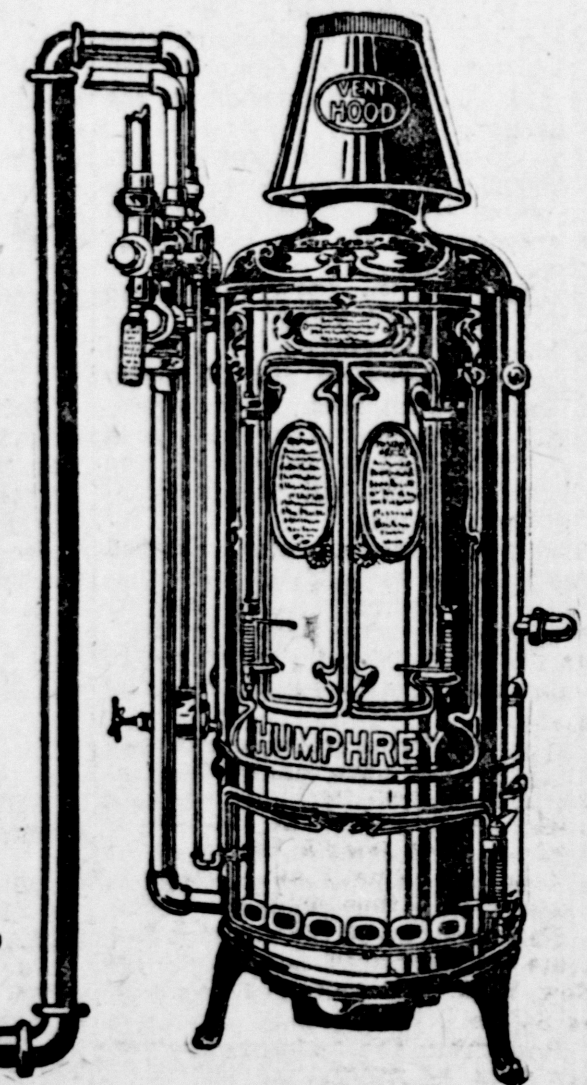

Turn any hot-water faucet in the house—instantly the hot water comes. It continues to flow as long as the faucet remains open. You can't exhaust the supply because it is heated as it flows.

And the cost—You can't heat water in any other way so economically as with the Humphrey Automatic Geyser. You will readily understand why when you realize that

You Pay Only for Gas
That Actually Heats Water

The gas is burning only while the water is running. The Humphrey Automatic Geyser reduces your fuel bill—combines economy and luxury—and provides more hot water. Doesn't that sound good to you?

I, Frank H. Burgess, business

LAWMAKING IS

PUBLIC BUSINESS

A legislator should stand in the same attitude as a judge. I would make it an offense to speak privately to a member or senator about public business.

Doubtless many will regard as extreme the above statement made by Senator La Follette to the lobby probe committee. But, is it?

The only legitimate business a citizen has with a senator or member is to present arguments for or against proposed legislation. The only proper arguments are facts and honestly drawn conclusions.

Is there any reason why honorable argument of this sort cannot be fully made at official hearings? What reason can one interested in pending legislation have in talking privately with legislators?

Only to say something he does not care to say publicly before the committee.

Wouldn't it be reasonable to prevent men from privately saying to members and senators things he does not dare say openly to a committee?

ABOUT WORKING

FOR GLORY

Sixteen leading business men, serving without pay, co-operate with the mayor of New Orleans in the management of the municipal belt line built for the convenience of shippers. Thus is contradicted the prevailing notion that Americans cannot be enlisted in public work unless they are paid well for the expenditure of time and effort.

Richard T. Ely, economist of the University of Wisconsin, enumerates three leading motives for the activity of individuals. First is the desire for money to satisfy personal wants; second is the desire to satisfy the wants of dependents; third is the desire for individual distinction. The professor sagely remarks that the third often is the strongest of all and that by playing on it properly social output could be materially increased.

Cities as well as private employers would do well to recognize the desire for personal distinction as a logical and praiseworthy ambition. Only too often the man who shows an indication of wanting to make a name for himself is discouraged into being a mere money grubber. As a matter of fact his desire for publicity is a lever that should be used to spur him to his best efforts. Self effacement is a virtue that few care to cultivate and that seldom is appreciated when it is cultivated. Most of the big achievements of this world have been wrought by men who had no idea of hiding their light under the bushel, who objected very strongly, in fact, to any one else getting credit for the work they were doing. A large percentage of what has come down to us as shining examples of sacrifice of pecuniary considerations in zeal for the public welfare is due to the presence of a far more compelling motive than money reward. We quote a partially correct, though rather sordid analysis of this motive:

"The way to get the most out of those with whom we are associated is to take them as we find them and not as we might wish them to be. Employers usually have a shrewd sense of the monetary value of personal vanity and pay off in titles or other symbols of preferment what other-wise they might have to pay in dollars. Cities if they are to get the greatest results from their human raw material must recognize the desire for distinction as legitimate and, while criticizing where criticism is due, also praise and praise heartily—when praise is due. European municipalities by generous concessions to the average men's desire to shine in the limelight, enlist the gratuitous services of their brainiest and most ambitious citizens. Anyway, he is a poor stick of a man who won't bend every effort to secure his share of whatever local fame is being passed around, especially when he has a conviction that he has earned it. Only when we concede that he is right in his desire for public notice will we get men to work harder for 'glory' than they do for salaries."

GOOD RIDDANCE TO BAD RUBBISH

The suggestion that President Wilson plans immediate action looking toward the relinquishment of the Philippines will create little worry outside of Wall street. The cost of governing them exceeds the revenues which they are netting a few private interests, and the future holds out little hope of a better balance sheet. They are Uncle Sam's menace so far as the "yellow peril" is concerned. Indeed, they practically constitute the "yellow peril." In the event of war with Japan they would be seized, and our ownership of them would give the mikado a chance to strike the first blow without leaving his own dooryard. To hold them against themselves is proving a great task; to hold them against a world power would be a stupendous undertaking. That which contributes much to the expense of the country without contributing materially to its general prosperity, that which constitutes a menace to our safety and in the minds of many violates our traditions of liberty, may well be dispensed with in whatever honorable manner first commends itself.

THERE'LL BE A HOT TIME IN THE PARKS

We quote from the Philadelphia Press:

"Superintendent of Police Thomas A. McQuaide believes in 'regulating' rather than in suppressing courtship in the city parks. His orders to the police regarding 'spooning' are as follows:

"Send all mashers to jail.

"Real lovers may walk or sit with their arms about each other's waist either under arc lights or in the shadows.

"Real lovers may hold hands in any park.

"Sweethearts will be permitted to kiss in the park.

"Officers must not embarrass true lovers by approaching them too closely.

"Under our excellent police system," said Supt. McQuaide to-night, "it is possible to permit lovers the same liberties in the public parks they might enjoy in a parlor, drawing room or private lawn. The city pays for the maintenance of the parks, and in my opinion the young people have the right to use them under the proper police regulation for legitimate love making."

Regarding all of which the Press says that "McQuaide was once a young man himself." And perhaps, an old sport now. No doubt when one of Mr. McQuaide's discriminating policemen observes—from a respectful distance—a couple of osculation fans mingled on a park bench he can tell at a glance whether love is making the world go round, or a "masher" has caught his "molly."

Vice President Marshall says the newspapers are saying too much about him. It is believed that this is the first time that any such thing has happened to one in his official position.

Japanese representative advises Japanese in California to keep cool and do nothing rash. That is good advice also for Japanese in Japan.

A scientist has invented a red dandelion, which is no way for a full grown man to spend his time.

Of all sad words the saddest yet are these: No game, grounds wet.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Just the Same

You can sweat until you're lame and you can sweat until you're sore. But the flies keep buzzing 'round you just the same.

You can sweat until you think that there cannot be any more. But the flies keep buzzing 'round you just the same.

You can sweat 'em in the morning, you can sweat 'em in the night. You can sweat 'em till you wreck your home and make of it a sight.

You may have determination and put up an awful fight. But the flies keep buzzing 'round you just the same.

Typical

A New England railway man said at a luncheon in Boston:

"The way some people talk, you'd think that there were a thousand safety appliances, any one of which, applied to American trains, would abolish accident and loss of life forever."

"There are, it is true, an abundance of safety devices for trains. These we are testing one by one, just as much as we can. But very few of them prove, on a running train, to do the things they do on paper."

"The average safety device, indeed, recalls the widow who applied for outdoor relief."

"Yours is a bad case," said the charity agent, "how did you lose your husband, ma'am?"

"He was killed, sir," answered the widow, "while testin' a new safety crotchcatcher for the P. D. R. railroad."

Depends Upon the System

Angry Purchaser—Didn't you tell me that you had got as many as twelve eggs in one day from those eight hens you sold me?"

Poultry Raiser—Yes, ma'am.

Angry Purchaser—Then why is it that I'm never able to get more than two eggs from one and sometimes not so many in one day?

Poultry Raiser—I don't know, ma'am, unless it's because you look for eggs too often. Now, if you look for them only once a week I feel quite positive that you will get just as many eggs in one day as I did.—Weekly Telegraph.

It Reminded Him

In a discussion of our enormous pension roll, Representative John C. Floyd said in an address in Yellville:

"This pension roll irresistibly reminds me of an occurrence in the town of Nola. Chucky many years ago.

"A circus visited Nola Chucky one May day. From miles about the country people came to see the show. In a crowded tent the performance in true circus fashion went on with pink lemonade, and lovely ladies erect on bareback horses, and clowns, and elephants, and ground and lofty tumbling.

"But suddenly the blue May sky clouded over. A terrific hurricane struck Nola Chucky, the circus tent was blown down and nearly fifty people were injured.

"From then on, whenever this circus returned to town, those who had been injured by the hurricane were admitted free.

"It was a long, long time ago. Yet year by year the circus comes to Nola Chucky, and year by year the injured get in on passes.

"This year, I understand, of the entire fifty injured, only 298 still survive."

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dissolves, it causes acid secretions to be excreted, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion. It is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

tells an Artemus Ward story of the Civil war.

"The student of the rebellion"—thus he will begin—"scarcely needs to be reminded that the great glory of Gen. John A. Dix was his memorable order, in the first days of the secession. 'If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot!'"

"That utterance sent an electric thrill through the heart of the north, but Artemus Ward, in pretended concern, button-holed Dix and said, in his modest, hesitating way:

"But—general—suppose he hasn't any spot?"

A Doubly Effective Contrivance

Two highlanders, being in Glasgow for the first time, were taking a walk through the city. They encountered, much to their astonishment, a water cart wetting the street. Never having seen anything of the kind before, James, under a mistaken idea, ran after the cart and cried out to the driver:

"Hey, man—hey, man, yer losin' a yer water."

His companion, much annoyed at James' want of knowledge, ran after him, caught him by the arm and said, rather testily:

"James, man, dinna be showin' yer ignorance. D'yer no see it's to keep the laddies off the back o' the cart."—Harper's Bazaar.

Useless Labor

One evening when Tommy, aged 5, was having his daily bath his nurse was trying with small success to scrub his grimy little knees.

After watching her for some time he said, patronizingly:

"Never mind, Bertha. Don't you know that's the dark meat, anyway?"—Harper's Magazine.

A Lunch Taster

After the small boy emerged from the quick lunch place he opened a paper bag and revealed a club sandwich. Glancing furtively around, he lifted off the top slice of bread, took out a piece of chicken, ate it and replaced the bread. A few moments later he again removed the "lid," extracted a piece of bacon, and repeated this process as he shuffled along Market street until all the bacon was gone and most of the chicken. A man who had watched the process with curiosity tapped the boy on the shoulder and inquired:

"Say, kid, why don't you eat your sandwich, instead of picking at it that way?"

"Dasn't," replied the youth; "tain't mine."

The Melting Of Molly

By Maria Thompson Daviess Author of Selma Lee; Rose of Old Harpeth.

Copyright, 1912, The Bobbs Merrill Co.

"You are cruel, cruel, John Moore, and I hate you worse than I ever did before, if that is possible. I'm hungry, hungry to death, and now you've spoiled it all! Go away before I wet this nice crisp bread and jam with tears into a mush I'll have to eat with a spoon. You don't know what it is to want something sweet so bad you are willing to steal it—from yourself!" I fairly blazed my eyes down into his and moved as far away from him as the table would let me.

"Don't I, Molly?" he asked softly, after looking straight in my eyes for a long minute that made me drop my head until the blue bow I had tied on the end of my long plait almost got into the scattered jam. Even at such a moment as that I felt how glad old Rene would have been to have given such a nice man as the doctor a treat like that—the silk chef-d'oeuvre of hers. I was glad myself.

"Don't I, Peaches?" he asked again in a still softer voice. Again I had that sensation of being against something warm and great and good like your own mother's breast and I don't know how I controlled it enough not to—to—

"Well, have some jam then," I managed to say with a little laugh as I turned away and picked up the silver spoon.

"Thank you, I will, all of it and the bread and butter, too," he answered, in that delectable friendly tone of voice as he drew himself up and sat in the window. "Hustle, Peaches, if you are going to feed me, for I'm ravenous. It took Sam Benson's wife the longest time to have the shortest baby I ever experienced and I haven't had any supper. You have; so I don't mind taking it all away from you."

"Supper," I sniffed, as I spread the jam on those lovely, lovely slices of bread and thick butter that I had fixed for my own self. "That apple-toast combination tires me so now that I forget it if I can." As I handed him the first slice of dripping lusciousness I turned my head away. He thought it was from the expression of that jam, but it was from his eyes.

"Slice up the whole loaf, Peaches, and let's get on a jam jag! Come with me just this once and forget—forget—" He didn't finish his sentence and I'm glad. We neither of us said anything more as I fed him the whole loaf. I found that the bite I took off of each piece I had ready for him when he finished with the one he had in hand satisfied me as nothing I had ever eaten in all my life before had done, while at the same time my nibbles soothed his conscience about robbing me.

His teeth are big and strong and white and his jaws work like machinery. He is the strongest man I ever saw, and his gauntness is all muscle. What is that glow a woman gets from feeding a hungry man whom she likes with her own hands; and why should I want to be certain that he kissed the lace on my sleeve as it brushed his face when I reached across him to catch an inquisitive rose that I saw peeping in the window at me?

In a glass of ice-cream soda-water and trying to hide from Doctor John behind the dab of ice-cream that seemed inadequate for food or protection. I haven't had even one glass for two months and I woke up in a cold perspiration of embarrassment and raging hunger.

I don't know what I'm going to do about this book and I've got myself into trouble about writing things besides records in it. He looked at me this morning as coolly as if I was just anybody and said: "I would like to see that record now, Mrs. Molly. It seems to me you are about as slim as you want to be. How did you tip the scales the last time you weighed, and have you noticed any trouble at all with your heart?"

"I weigh one hundred and thirty-four pounds and I've got to melt and freeze and starve off that four." I answered, ignoring the heart question and also the question of producing this book. Wonder what he would do if I gave it to him to read just as it is?

"How about the heart?" he persisted, and I may have imagined the smile in his eyes for his mouth was purely professional. Anyway, I lowered my lashes down on to my cheeks and answered experimentally:

"Sometimes it hurts." Then a cyclone happened to me.

"Come here to me a minute!" he said quickly and he turned me around and put his head down between my shoulders and held me so tight against his ear that I could hardly breathe.

"Expand your chest three times and breathe as deep as you can," he ordered from against my back buttons. I expanded and breathed—pretty quickly at that.

"Now hold your breath as long as you can," he commanded, and it fitted my mood exactly to do so.

"Can't find anything," he said at last, letting me go and looking carefully at my face. His eyes were all anxiety; and I liked it. "When does it hurt you and how?" he asked anxiously.

"Moonlight nights and lonesomeness," I answered before I could stop myself, and what happened then was worse than any cyclone. He got white for a minute and just looked at me as if I was a bug stuck on a pin, then gave a short little laugh and turned to the table.

"I didn't understand you were joking," he said quietly.

That maddened me and I would have done anything to make him think I was not the foolish thing he evidently had classified me as being. I snatched at my mind and shook out a mixture of truth and lies that fooled even myself and gave them to him, looking straight in his face. I would have cracked all the ten commandments to save myself from his contempt.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

PANSY LOVE

By LAURA ADELA KIRKMAN

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Alicia looked at her engagement ring miserably.

"From the size and beauty of its stone one would think its purchaser the most liberal man in the world," she mused. "And he is—in big things."

In big things! Those three words comprised her unhappiness. For David was not consistently liberal; in little things he was what Alicia—being a New Englander—called "nigh." His Scotch blood had given him that one trait—thriftiness in petty ways.

To a girl as generous hearted as Alicia, this one unworthy trait seemed to outweigh all his noble qualities. She had learned his nature well enough to know that, after marriage, if he were to give her a nickel for the purpose of buying a postage stamp he would expect to have the remaining three cents returned to him.

"And I should loathe him then!" she said aloud. "No, I couldn't be happy with such a man. If only—only—he were a little less generous in big things, and a little more in small."

But what good did all this wishing do? For the past week she had done nothing but go over and over the situation; now, plainly, the only course to take was either that of acceptance or rebellion. She could not change this solid Scot of hers. She must either take him or must leave him.

For a long time she sat looking through the open window, over the shady veranda, down the path to the gate where the letter box stood. Should she rebel, and drop into that box a letter breaking off the engagement? Should she take the ring from her finger, put it in a box and send it away—forever?

She decided—that should—that she must.

"And at once, too," she said firmly. "She knew that if she waited till the next time he came to Glenville she might weaken and try to overlook his fault. She knew well what power he had over her when near—that his Scotch-blue eyes, his splendid strength, his lightning-streaks of tenderness, held her in complete thrall."

"But I mustn't marry him!" she reaffirmed. "I couldn't be really happy with him. I only think I could be, when he's near."

She took the ring from her finger and placed it in a small, white box. Then, hurriedly, she began her letter:

"Dear David—I have come to the decision that I can't marry you. I don't love you enough. When you are away from me, I know I don't. I'm sorry, David. I should have told you long ago. I did not, because I was not sure. But now I am sure, and know I could not be happy with you. Penitently, Alicia."

"P. S.—The ring, I shall mail as soon as I can get into town to register it."

Snatching an envelope, she addressed and sealed the note. Even now, she was half afraid of weakening and not sending it, after all.

"But I must!" she kept repeating. "I know I couldn't be happy with him. There's he times when I'd loathe him. Money shouldn't enter into love; when it does, then that isn't true love. I think he must love pennies more than he loves me!"

Catching up the letter, she started for the mail box.

But on the veranda steps she was detained. An old neighbor stood before her.

"Good morning! It's not too early to make a call, is it?" the woman was saying. "Land, but I'm out of breath. It's going to be a terrible hot day."

Alicia sighed. She knew that for at least an hour she was to be held in the shackles of the town's greatest talker.

"Not at all too early; I'm very glad you came," she struggled to answer politely.

Her eyes fell on a bunch of pansies in the woman's hands.

"Oh, how beautiful!" she exclaimed involuntarily.

Alicia loved flowers. Her dead mother, before her, had loved them. These pansies were the most beautiful she had ever seen.

"Yes, ain't they pretty?" chimed the pleased old woman. "Every one says to me: 'Mrs. Billings, you have the loveliest pansies I've ever seen.' You see, I take more care of them than of any of my other flowers; I give them the richest earth, and water them the most. But—she dropped to a chair and leaned forward with a mysteriously confidential air—I never told one of 'em why I take such care of my pansies! Not a soul knows why!"

Alicia started. Something in the old woman's manner awakened real curiosity within her. Remembering that the postman would not pass for half an hour, she delayed mailing the letter, and sat down on the steps.

"Are you going to tell me?" she asked, almost forgetting her unhappiness for a moment.

Mrs. Billings thought for a time. Then she looked up and nodded.

"I will tell you. You ain't the kind to gossip over things. It'll do me good to talk to somebody about myself. Why, I haven't talked about this since John died!"

A thrill of real sympathy shot through Alicia. She saw the loneliness that had filled the years since the poor old woman had become a widow.

"Tell me," she said softly, touching the pansy-filled hands, "do you make real friends of pansies—is that what you mean? Do you sort of think they understand?"

The gray head moved from side to side.

"Not quite. Of course they do mean a lot to me, but in the way of memories. It's quite a little fairy story, my dear. Yes, a fairy story with a real prince in it." She seemed to drift away into some land all her own.

But soon she returned. "You see, John was not what the world calls a handsome man; he was pockmarked, and his eyes were very prominent, and he was on, much shorter than I. None of the other girls in the village would have anything to do with him. They didn't think he was—wonderful!"

Again she drifted away into fairyland.

This time, Alicia brought her back. Her voice came eagerly, excitedly: "But you thought him wonderful?"

"For some inexplicable reason her fingers were tightening on the letter so that it seemed as if she must destroy its legibility."

It came softly, caressingly: "Yes! I thought he was the best-looking man in the world."

"At first—did you think so at first?"

Mrs. Billings hesitated. "Well, no," she admitted, "not at first. Not until he told me he loved me; then I began to see only his perfections, and to forget that he had what the world calls 'defects.' He had no defects, in my eyes, after I loved him. And here—" she stopped to smile at Alicia, plainly pleased by her eager interest, "here, child, is where the pansies come in: He always called me 'Pansy.' You see, he thought I was making a sacrifice in marrying him. He said I was like the pansies, because pansies turn their faces to the sun and follow it wherever it goes—as if they realize that their lives are short!"

With the final words, she rose to her feet, dropped the bouquet on her chair, and started hastily down the steps. Evidently the recital of the long-pent-up memories had been too much for her fortitude. She walked swiftly down the path and out on the road.

Alicia sat on the steps as if in a trance. Her eyes stared straight in front of her. Even the rattle of the mail carrier's wagon wheels failed to rouse her.

But when the man had passed she came suddenly to herself. She snatched up the letter, which had fallen on the step beside her, and tore it into a thousand pieces. Then she sprang to her feet and raised her face to the bright morning sun.

WATER CARNIVAL FEATURE OF FAIR

Exhibition of Natatorial Art to Be Shown at the Eagles' Street Carnival Week of June 23

The week of the big Eagles' Carnival which starts June 23 and continues for one week will be a gala week for the people of La Crosse and adjacent towns. For entertainment the committee has secured the Wortham and Allen United Shows and are assured that these are the largest of the carnival attractions now traveling. It is the identical show that has been appearing at the larger fairs of the United States and Canada with such favorable comment. This is the sixth week the shows have been out and as they were newly outfitted and repainted this season quite a treat is looked for. The fronts are all hand carved and decorated in gold and silver leaf and other beautiful shades. This decoration, with the many thousands of incandescent lights used, make it a fairland to behold.

In all the show has one hundred and sixty-one wagons which are transported on their own train of thirty-five cars. They furnish their own light from three monster electric light plants and carry in addition two big heating plants for supplying heat to the big water tank and the dressing rooms of the employees. Comfort is the motto of the management as regards their employees and this feeling is reciprocated by the actors and actresses by giving their seat and soul in their work.

One of the newer attractions is the water carnival and circus in which twenty young lady swimmers and divers take part. This is a very high class exhibition and not a mere splashing around in a tank. The principals are all famous people and draw handsome salaries for their work. Among the more famous of these are: Mabel Whittaker, Esther Donahue, Lillian Cooley and Chubb Whitney. Miss Whittaker is the Canadian long distance champion, while Miss Donahue holds the Richard K. Fox medal for America and has been successful in defending it for the past three years. France claims Miss Whitney and Ireland Miss Cooley. These principals are assisted by many other excellent people and give a high class entertainment which pleases everyone. The huge tank used in this show is heated by a special boiler and holds over thirty thousand gallons of water.

MAY IS A BUSY MONTH

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES REPORTS LARGE NUMBER OF CASES HANDLED MANY INSTANCES OF HELP DIRECT

The month of May was a busy one for the Associated Charities, according to the report of Miss Winifred Salisbury, secretary, made public today. The association handled 41 cases during the month, in the conduct of which 107 visits were made, 46 office conferences, and 50 telephone calls. Fuel was furnished to three families, and rent was paid for three others. Clothing and shoes were furnished in thirteen instances. The report also mentions that through the co-operation of a railroad company, they were able to send to a farm in Illinois a family of six, which was unable to cope with conditions in La Crosse, the father being ill. The help of the courts in cases of juvenile delinquency was invoked five times, and the secretary reports that the health department, hospitals, county physician, societies and individuals have co-operated for the relief of deserving cases in many instances. The report to the visiting nurse has not been completed for May, owing to the fact that Miss Marie Peterson is suffering from a physical breakdown.

CORONER'S INQUEST COSTS GRAT SUM

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 9.—Word of a tragic suicide and new record in cost of coroner's inquest was received here today in a report from United States Commissioner E. J. Stier of the remote Kuskokwim district.

The report tells of the finding by a trader named Bishop of the body of E. C. Tawney, a trapper, 110 miles from Georgetown, on the Stony river. Stier had a coroner's jury sworn in. The jurors loaded four sleds with supplies and started for the scene, but did not reach it for a week.

They found Tawney's body in his tent. He had tied a string to the trigger of his gun and shot the top of his head off. Pinned to the bed was a note on rough paper. "February—About 12, 1913.—My legs all swelled up, I can barely walk. I can hardly breathe, can't sleep at night. Wood is getting impossible, I guess I might as well quit."

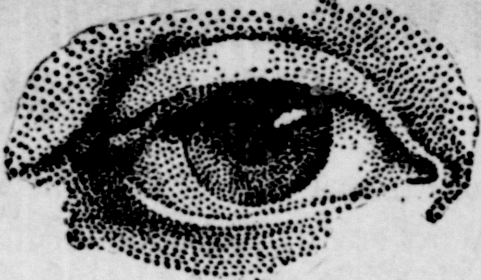

An itemized bill of costs shows that the inquest and funeral cost $7,072.

STARTS SUIT TO OUST ALDERMAN

J. H. Sterry of Viroqua Claims Seat Now Held by F. P. McIntosh; Opens Quo Warranto Action

Charging that F. P. McIntosh of Viroqua was illegally granted a certificate of election as alderman by the board of canvassers in the Vernon county city, James H. Sterry, also of Viroqua, Saturday instituted quo warranto proceedings before Circuit Judge E. C. Higbee to oust McIntosh from the office.

There were two vacancies to be filled at the spring election of aldermen in Viroqua. One was a short term, to fill a vacancy caused by a resignation, the other was for the regular two year term. Sterry alleges that because McIntosh, in filing his nomination papers, did not state for which term he was a candidate, he was illegally given a certificate of election to the long term.

McIntosh's reply, which was ruled out by the court on the ground that it did not answer the charges made by the plaintiff, declared that inasmuch as McIntosh had just completed a full term as alderman there was no need to state in his nomination papers that he was a candidate for the long term. The reply held that there was no question in the minds of the voters as to which term McIntosh desired.

Judge Higbee gave McIntosh five days in which to file amended reply.

Divorces were granted by Judge Higbee this morning in the cases of Elizabeth Blon against Charles Blon; Alice Otis against F. M. Otis, and Dora McCormac against W. E. McCormac.

SOCIETY

ENTERTAINS AT LAWN FETE

An interesting event took place Saturday afternoon on the spacious lawn of Mr. J. M. Hixon when the Primrose club, composed of a number of young girls of the neighborhood gave an entertainment. The scene was laid at a young ladies' boarding school at the time of the graduation exercises. The entertainment was opened when Hewett Toland sounded a fanfare on the bugle. Frances Goetzman skipped across the green scattering roses before pages, Posey Edwards, "Col." Hixon, Don Gordon and Ben Edwards, who followed escorting the queen, Miss Eleanor Edwards, and her suite. They wound in and out among the shrubbery and seated her on her flower bedecked throne, when they all saluted her. The first pageant was the dance and winding of the Maypole by the Misses Elizabeth Norbeck, Jessie Evans, Ruth Salzer, Eleanor Sanford, Caroline Schweizer, Ruth and Anna Esch, who went through the intricate evolutions with grace and precision.

The second part of the pageant was the presentation of a crown of roses to the queen by the seasons, which were represented by four young ladies, Miss Eleanor Sanford as Spring, Miss Anna Esch, Summer, Miss Ruth Esch, Autumn, and Miss Caroline Schweizer, Winter, all appropriately garbed. A farewell dance was then given by the ladies in waiting, the Misses Betty Hixon, Jessie Evans, Elizabeth Norbeck and Ruth Salzer in colonial costume.

The graduates, the Misses Ruth Salzer, Dora Hirschheiber, Emily and Helen Goetzman, came to the front and were presented with their diplomas by Miss Garrett of the normal, who was imposing in cap and gown and who read a short poem and made a few remarks to the graduates. The queen, who reigns one year, stepped from her throne and greeted the new queen, Miss Gretchen Schweizer, who was crowned with a wreath of roses. The procession then formed and marched out singing Verdi's beautiful "Springtime."

There was a large and delighted audience present which applauded with a spirit showing appreciation of the affair. Light refreshments were served by the ladies in waiting.

BRIDAL FESTIVITIES

The Misses Georgina and Carmel Young gave an afternoon coffee at their home Saturday in honor of Miss Elsa Newburg. The refreshment table was prettily appointed. ## Y.W.C.A. WORKERS HOLD CONFERENCE

Heads of the Work in the Middle West Meet to Discuss Plans for Nine States

MISS DINSDALE QUILTS POSITION

General Secretary at Local Association Resigns After Four Years Here

An important conference concerning Y. W. C. A. work in the middle west was held in La Crosse yesterday, when Mrs. Emma F. Byers, Minneapolis, executive secretary of the north central field, Miss Ida V. Jontz, Chicago, executive of the central field, and Miss Minnie Crittenden, secretary in charge of city associations in the north central field, met and discussed conditions and plans for the work in nine states. Mrs. Byers has charge of the work in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas, and Miss Jontz is in charge of associations in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Indiana.

Miss Dinsdale Quits

Among the matters taken up at the conference was the resignation of Miss Tirzah A. Dinsdale, secretary of the La Crosse Y. W. C. A. Miss Dinsdale's resignation was given to the board of directors at a meeting Saturday. Miss Dinsdale has been general secretary of the local Y. W. C. A. for four years. Her resignation is to take effect July 15.

The board of directors of the local association met with Miss Jontz Saturday afternoon, and laid plans to extend the work of the association for the coming year. Tentative decision was made to add an additional secretary to the staff of the association, to relieve the general secretary of the supervision of the building, in order to leave her hands free to build up the association by extension work. Miss Dinsdale's future plans are not formed definitely. She will continue in association work, and the conference of executives yesterday developed rivalry between the heads of the two fields for her services. Miss Dinsdale herself wants to be placed at Muscatine, Iowa, where a sister will teach next year, and it is possible that she may be given a position there. There is also need of an efficient worker at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and there is a possibility that Miss Dinsdale may be tendered the position.

Discuss Camp Plans

The local board of directors in its meeting Saturday discussed among other affairs plans for the association's annual camp on the river. The camp will have a houseboat in addition to the cottage leased last year.

Owing to the small sum charged the girls who enjoy the camp, the question of financing the summer's outing was an important one at the meeting. It was developed by the directors that several of the girl workers in the association are contributing money earned "on the side" toward the up-keep of the camp. One girl darning stockings and turns the proceeds over the fund, while another washes "middle" blouses for her friends. Several other unique ways of money-raising were discovered.

Miss Jontz left last night for Chicago. She has been making a tour of Wisconsin associations under her supervision. Mrs. Byers and Miss Crittenden left yesterday afternoon for Winona, where today they are organizing a city association.

If a man is as polite to his wife as he is to other women, she is apt to become suspicious.

NEW BALKAN WAR MAY BREAK OUT

LONDON, June 9.—It was semi-officially announced that the outlook in the Balkans is very pessimistic when the St. James peace conference adjourned today after a session lasting three hours and a half, in which Serbia did not participate. It was the final session of the plenipotentiaries.

The Greeks and Bulgars are still reported to be in a state of war around Salonika and Serbian troops are advancing toward the Bulgarian frontier. There is grave danger that a war more serious than that against Turkey may yet involve the Balkan states.

AGED MAN IS HIT BY LIGHT ENGINE

August Rimmert Falls to Hear Approaching Locomotive and Is Badly Hurt

While walking on the tracks of Burlington railroad at the West Avenue crossing on the way to his home Saturday night, August Rimmert, age 70, was struck by the pilot of a light engine, sustaining three broken ribs and severe bruises.

According to Engineer Benningson, who was in the locomotive, and Brakeman J. H. Burton, Rimmert was in the middle of the track when he was seen by the trainmen. Benningson decreased the speed of his engine and Rimmert stepped off the track. When the engine was again running faster, he stepped back to the track and was struck.

Dr. R. E. Flynn was called and Rimmert was taken to the St. Francis hospital in an ambulance. Rimmert was dead and it is thought that he did not hear the train. His injuries are not fatal, but it is feared that his age will be against him.

TAKES STAND IN SELF DEFENSE

Henwood Describes Shooting in Brown Hotel Murder Over Two Years Ago

DENVER, June 9.—Harold F. Henwood, charged with killing Sylvester Van Phul and George Copeland in the bar room of the Brown hotel here two years ago, today began the battle in his own defense. The first witness called to the stand after the state rested, Henwood was allowed to tell his own story in his own way, over the repeated objections of District Attorney Rush. Standing over the witness and shaking his fists in Henwood's face the district attorney glowered over the man who is fighting for his life. Repeatedly District Judge Butler was forced to order Bush to be seated after overruling his objections to the form or substance of Henwood's story.

Henwood described in detail what happened in the Brown hotel the night he killed Von Phul and accidentally shot Copeland. He declared he was standing in the Brown bar room when Von Phul approached and insulted him, expressing his personal hatred of the witness.

"I never saw such hatred pictured on any man's face," he said. "I knew he meant murder. It was written all over his face. I stepped up to him and asked him to retract the threats he had made against me the day before, when he tried to kill me. For answer he struck me a blow in the face that threw me to the floor."

"I saw nothing but his face glaring threateningly down at me. I knew he meant to kill. I knew he never fought fair and when I saw him reach for his hip pocket I grabbed my gun as quickly as I could and shot him."

TRAFFIC COP FOR FOURTH AND MAIN

Mayor Orders Chief to Station Man at Busy Corner to Control Motorists

Another step in the new city's administration's campaign against violations of the ordinances governing automobiles in the city was taken this morning when Mayor Ori J. Sorenson ordered Chief of Police John B. Webber to station a traffic policeman at Fourth and Main streets. The new "traffic squad" took up his position this morning.

In addition to the warnings which have been sent to local motorists who are in the custom of exceeding the speed limit, the police Saturday sent to all motorists in the city a book containing the rules of the department governing automobile traffic. The rules provide for a six mile speed at Fourth and Main and other important corners.

Mayor Sorenson sent a note to the street car company this morning, warning them to stop their cars at least 100 feet from the intersection of Fourth and Main street, as provided by the ordinances.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., June 9.—Plans have been completed for the annual camp meeting of the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist Episcopal church to be held at Byron camp grounds on July 10 to 20. The program for this year has been made especially attractive by the presence of Bishop Joseph F. Berry of Philadelphia, who will be present for three days at the opening of the camp meeting, and Bishop William A. Quayle of St. Paul, who will preach on the last Sunday of the meeting.

EXPECT TO BATTLE WITH MURDERER

MARIE, Mich., June 9.—After searching all day Sunday without success, heavily armed posses today again went out on the trail of Joseph Tovens who, after fatally stabbing Alfred Scribner shot and killed Deputy Sheriff James Sutton. It is believed Tovens will be located in the woods today and the authorities are prepared for a desperate battle. The fugitive is armed and desperate, and it is believed will not be taken alive.

IT WOULD HAMPER ORGANIZED LABOR

Indictment of United Mine Workers' Officials Raises Important Legal Question

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 9.—That conviction of President John P. White, Vice President Frank J. Hayes, and seventeen other officials of the United Mine Workers on the indictments in federal court charging conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust law, would put a stop to all interstate activity in organizing labor is the declaration of labor leaders here today.

They do not expect conviction, although governing officials have intimated that when the indicted men appear before Judge Benjamin F. Keller early this week, they will ask immediate trial. Local leaders are encouraged by the attitude of President White, who brands the charges that mine leaders have been in league with the operators as absurd and ridiculous.

"I am not at all surprised at the length to which operators have gone. The story is a fabrication of the wildest imagination."

AGED LADY DIES AT HOME OF DAUGHTER

Mrs. Barbara Tykal, age 85, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Harmacek, 1018 South Sixteenth street, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an illness of two weeks. Death resulted from the infirmities of old age.

Mrs. Tykal was born in Bohemia, coming to this country twenty-six years ago with her parents and settling in La Crosse. She is survived by four sons and two daughters. She has been a widow for twelve years.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the residence. Burial will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

CHECK MILITANTS' PLAN OF FUNERAL

Scotland Yards May Stop Spectacle that Would Outdo that of King Edward

LONDON, June 9.—Fearing possible disorders of a grave nature, the Scotland Yard police heads today were considering the advisability of prohibiting a great public funeral which the militant suffragettes are arranging for Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the Northumberland suffragette, who died late yesterday at Epson Cottage hospital as the result of the injuries she received when she attempted to grasp the bridle of the king's horse in last week's Derby.

At the headquarters of the Woman's Social and political union in King's Way, where the flag is at half mast in honor of the dead woman, the women said they were planning for the biggest funeral that London ever saw, not even excepting that of the late King Edward. They said they would make the death of Miss Davison the most impressive object lesson Great Britain has had for a generation, bringing home to every man and woman in the United Kingdom the realization that the woman's battle for the ballot is a real revolution and not opera bouffe and story book.

SPRINGFIELD HAS DISASTROUS FIRE

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—Fire starting early today in the basement of the Heer Dry Goods company, swept the entire northeast corner of the square, entailing a loss estimated by appraisers at between $700,000 and $1,000,000. The heaviest loss was sustained by the Heer company, the stock alone being estimated at $250,000. The fire originated in the basement of this store and in twenty minutes the whole interior was a mass of flames. An east wind swept the fire to adjoining blocks and the whole northeast corner of the square was swept out.

DERBY SUFFRAGETTE MAY BE DYING TODAY

LONDON, June 9.—Physicians said this afternoon that they did not expect Miss Emily Davison, the suffragette of Derby notoriety, to survive the day. She had been unconscious for hours and her heart was failing.

Jones, the jockey who was injured when the suffragette threw King George's horse Anmer, in the Epsom Downs derby, is making good progress.

The three suffragettes arrested for trying to break up the Balkan peace conference at St. James palace today were tried in Bow street police court and given their choice of $5 fine or two weeks in jail. They chose imprisonment.

CREEPS UNDER TRAIN CHILD MEETS DEATH

RANDOLPH, Wis., June 9.—While playing about the railroad yards, Arthur, the 5 year old son of Section Foreman Laflar, crawled under a freight train and sustained injuries from which he soon died. He was caught under the cars unnoticed, and as the train started was struck by a wheel.

REV. FAVILLE IN SERMON TO GRADS

Baccalaureate Address Delivered to High School Class at Hixon Annex Sunday

The baccalaureate address given by Rev. Henry Faville at the high school yesterday afternoon was attended by the graduates who marched into the auditorium in a body. The address dealt with the subject "La Crosse Made Brains." Mr. Faville alluded to "brains" as the exhibit of the high school for La Crosse Made Week. The address covered all the benefits that may be derived from the work at the high school in four years. Rev. Faville congratulated the school on the steady increase of graduates, there being 84 last year to 104 this year.

The program was opened by a beautifully rendered duet by Miss Winnifred Forbes and Mr. Harry Marshall. A double male quartet sang "The Heavens Are Telling" as the closing number. Mr. Packman accompanied the singers.

This afternoon the high school graduates are up the river on a picnic the last social function of the nature they will be together to enjoy this year. Most of the faculty and all of the graduates embarked for upstream in launches at 3 o'clock and will return this evening.

Last Saturday afternoon the L. D. D. S. of the high school celebrated the close of the year with a picnic at Salzer's cottage. A most joyous time was spent by all in fishing, baseball and dancing. Mr. Homer Leach who chaperoned the party caught a 13 pound catfish off one of the dams.

WILSON PLEASED AT LOBBY PROBE

President Says Lobbyists Are Fleeing; Currency Bill Not Whipped Into Shape

By BOND P. GEDDES (Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Wilson today gave vent to Hallelujahs over his expose of the tariff lobby. He told newspaper men at his semi-weekly audience that his message to the country on the "insidious lobby" had already been of great effect. He said many lobbyists have already been literally run out of Washington, and that the "breed" will be rather scarce in the future, at least during the present tariff session of congress.

Intimations of Senator Townsend of Michigan that the "big stick" of patronage is being used by the president to "lobby" for his tariff convictions were ignored. He does not deem that Townsend's statement constitutes a direct charge necessitating a reply.

President Wilson has little hope for immediate action on currency legislation. He said he contemplates further conferences with currency leaders in congress before framing his message and adopting a general plan in the proposed bill. The president said he was undecided whether the elastic currency should be based upon United States notes or those of national banks. Other important features, the executive declared, had not been determined upon sufficiently to write into the bill.

In the original law passed two years ago.

The bill adopts the New Jersey schedule for fixed compensation for persons not permanently disabled. The bill also increases the compensation to persons permanently disabled to six times the annual wage, the present compensation being four times the annual wage.

The bill brings all employers under the act unless they elect to the contrary prior to September 1 of this year. The abolition of the contributory negligence defense will operate to bring practically all employers under the act.

The employers of 150,000 employees in the state of Wisconsin are now under the act. It is estimated by the industrial commission that the new bill will increase the number of employees under the act to at least 300,000.

The bill also encourages employers to protect themselves by insurance against losses through accidents by their employees.

Although this bill has not attracted a great deal of attention it is one of the big bills of the session.

CHILDREN STAGE PLAYLET

The Sixteenth Street Dramatic club managed by Miss Florence Worth, gave a playlet taken from the fable "Snow White," Saturday afternoon. The players were children, and the theater was improvised in the rear of the home of Lewis H. White, 1619 Madison street.

DUCHESS D'ARION AND SPANISH QUEEN SAID TO RULE MAN WHO RULES SPAIN

King Alfonso of Spain is said to be under the rule of women of the Spanish court. Ruling the decadent Spain of today is not the job it used to be when the sun rarely set on that land's dominions, but still young Alfonso doesn't seem to be equal to it. Among the women who exert the greatest influence over him are the Queen of Spain—Victoria—and the Duchess D'Arion. The king is said to be especially attentive to the advice of the duchess.

FOREIGN MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 9.—The stock market opened active and lower.

Chicago Grain Review.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Wheat moved in a narrow range today. Lower Liverpool cables started the market easier, but buying orders consumed the offerings on the dip, and there was recovery and then a 1/4 c advance.

Corn held fairly in the face of heavy receipts. July at noon was steady on the day's opening, with September only 1/4 c under the day's opening.

Oats opened easier with wheat, but there was sufficient buying on the early dip to bring the market back to the opening prices at noon.

In spite of a big run of hogs and lower hog prices, lard was higher today under heavy buying pressure. The other provisions held firm.

Wheat made further advance of 1/4 c in the afternoon, and the other grains responded in sympathy, the entire grain list closing strong and higher than the day's opening.

Provisions other than pork eased off a trifle in the afternoon and closed slightly under the day's opening. Pork closed firm and higher.
